Lancaster, Ky.

Lancaster people are finding Crab Orchard Springs a cool and welcome retreat these days.

Much complaint is heard of stock being allowed to roam at large at night, much to the detriment of many nice lawns.

Blackberries, small in size, inferior in quality and high in price, but blackberries just the same, are on the market.

Mint is about the greenest vegetation to be seen these days. Mint, what a mocker! with nothing to go with it in a dry territory.

The man with the hay bailer is finding business exceedingly good. Farmers are very wisely having every wisp of straw and hay bailed.

Garden truck is literally burned to a crisp. Vegetables are high and hardly obtainable and he who has even a "mess of beans" in his garden is indeed in a dry territory.

The oil placed upon the streets is proving a great blessing. But for it the dust during the recent dry hot weather would have been well nigh unbearable.

The Assistant Editor of the Record has been confined to his bed the past week with a virulent attack of "pizen oak" contracted while on the recent Masonic trip to Liberty.

If all the splendid threats and prospects of rain which we have had in the past ten days had materialized, what a splendid condition of affairs would have prevailed in this vicinity.

WELCOME RAIN.

Rain began falling at 10 o'clock Monday night and fell for several hours, and again on Tuesday a "regular soaker" fell, which was general throughout the county. As a result crops are looking much better, stock water is again plentiful and the spirits of the farmers are again soaring with a prospect of good corn and tobacco crops.

LET'S HAVE A STOP TO IT.

The officers cannot as a matter of course stay up all night to enforce the stray pen ordinance, and some of our citizens seem to be taking advantage of this fact to turn their stock out to graze after the shades of evening fall and on Sundays. Several nice lawns have been severely damaged through this practice, and it appears to us that if some of these people who are accustomed to turn their stock out to annoy their neighbors were fined for the offense, it would put a stop to this very annoying and damaging practice.

JUST HOW MANY MORE BLOWS WILL DANVILLE STAND.

And now the Danville Fair, usually one of the best in the state, has been called off, giving as the reasons, the severe drought and the absence of hotel accommodations. Poor old Danville just how much more degradation we wonder will she suffer before her wealthy citizens come to their own senses and her rescue and put up some kind of a hostelry in keeping with the needs of the town. Surely, ere long the light will break in upon them, they will come to their senses, will realize the fact, readily apparent to her neighbors, that the good old town is in the rapid decline, and will do something to restore her to her former standing of one of the best and most progressive towns in Kentucky.

CONGRESSMAN STANLEY'S FATHER

A Minister Still In The Service. It may not be generally known that the father of Congressman A. O. Stanley, one of the three candidates for the Democratic Senatorial nomination, is a minister of the gospel, but he is. His name is Rev. Dr. William Stanley, and he is a leading light of the Christian church at Burkesville, Cumberland county Ky. Dr. Stanley, who came to Louisville a few days ago to see his son, who was there for a political speech, although 83 years old, is actively engaged in the ministry, and told a newspaper reporter who interviewed him that he can still ride horseback or a bicycle with almost the same ease he did as a young man. He has served in various pulpits throughout Kentucky for nearly fifty years and personally knew Alexander Campbell, the founder of the denomination, which now numbers such a large membership in this State. Dr. Stanley takes a most lively interest in the Senatorial candidacy of his distinguished son and is confident he will win the toga.—Lexington Leader.

MIGHTY BATTLES FOR TEMPERANCE

To Be Fought In Kentucky.

Before the coming of frost fourteen counties within the Commonwealth will have voted as to whether or not whiskey shall be banished from their confines. They are Daviess, Henderson, Christian, McCracken, Bell, Mason, Montgomery, Clark, Bourbon, Fayette, Anderson, Shelby, Franklin and Scott. In some of these counties the contest will be doubtful, and the race will be spirited, while in others the issue is one sided, but the battle against rum will be relentless, every argument will be brought to bear. The ablest advocates of the cause obtainable will be engaged in the work, and a battle for temperance such as was never waged before will be fought for the banishment of strong drink. Mrs. Frances E. Beauchamp, president of the State W. C. T. U. and herself a speaker in the cause of temperance of no mean ability, will make a personal canvass of each of the counties, and victories which will surely be won by the dry forces, will be due in no small measure to her efforts.

We are to be thankful that our troubles along this line are long since passed, whiskey was banished from Lancaster by means of the ballot more than 25 years ago. The campaign is well to be remembered and was a warmly contested one, friend was arrayed against friend, breaches of friendship were made, which we are glad to say are long since healed, and we are living in a dry county, perhaps as dry as can be had under the present laws which permit interstate shipment, and beyond doubt, we are living much more comfortably and happily than if we had open saloons. But the casting out of the saloon is not by any means the end of the battle, at least this was our experience, for with the debarring of the legal sale, the "blind tiger" reared his ugly head. But we long since succeeded in downing this beast, and by the aid of efficient officers whose actions are backed up by strong public sentiment, he stays down, or at least as soon as he seeks to again rear his head, a well directed blow crushes that ambition.

But eternal vigilance and that alone excludes liquor from a community, the successful outcome of a local option election by no means that the district where the election was held is to be thenceforward actually dry. The temperance people will not then be enabled to fold their hands and rest in peace, the battle has but commenced, and unless they are up and doing, their recent won victory will prove but a farce.

On your guard: do not stop with the winning of the election, see that the law is enforced, see that you have efficient officers who will enforce the law, and if necessary give them your physical as well as moral support in their by no means easy undertaking.

LOST.

A dark brown hair braid. Think it was lost on Lexington street, close to Square. Finder please return to this office.

JUST HOW MANY MORE BLOWS WILL DANVILLE STAND.

If you see the police slipping around late at night with a gum shoe step, they are not looking for dynamiters and seizers who are violating the fish laws, but are trying to see whose sprinkler or hose is turned on.—Harrodsburg Leader.

HACKLEY POSTOFFICE TO BE DISCONTINUED.

The postoffice at Hackley is to be discontinued on July 31st. Patrons of the office will be supplied by a rural route to be established out on Paint Lick, and some of the people who have been accustomed to get their mail at Hackley will doubtless patronize rural route No. 1 out of Lancaster which also travels in that vicinity. Hackley is near the home of Mr. Joe Burnsides on the Kirksville pike and Mr. S. R. Foley was the postmaster.

GIVE THE METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL THE VOTES

WHO CAN SUGGEST A REMEDY FOR THIS EVIL?

The tomato crop is being destroyed by a new enemy. A worm, evidently a borer of some description, very much resembling the ordinary tobacco worm, but varying in length from one to two inches in length, is destroying the crop. The worm enters the tomato which immediately begins to rot and is of course rendered useless. They evidently attack only ripe fruit or those about to ripen, but they are here in large numbers and unless something is done to check their ravages, the already drought curtailed crop will be damaged at least fifty per cent.

GARRARD COUNTY HAS HER QUOTO ACCORDING TO LAST CENSUS.

Kentucky has 208,084 men and women, according to the last report of the United States Census Bureau, who cannot read and write—valuable material going to waste—good people, but in a state of mental darkness. Garrard County has 834 of these unfortunate.

A movement is on foot to give these people a chance like the grown people of Rowan County had in their Moonlight Schools. In that county men and women past eighty learned in a few weeks to read and write. Only twenty-three illiterates were left in that county, though there were 1152 when the Moonlight Schools began, three years ago. A number of Kentucky teachers have taken up the movement, and Moonlight Schools are being conducted in a number of counties in the State.

The Kentucky Illiteracy Commission has opened headquarters in the new State capital at Frankfort, and will gladly give information or lend assistance to any who are interested in stamping out illiteracy from Kentucky either in Moonlight Schools or by instructing individuals in their homes.

The Commission is composed of Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, President; Dr. J. G. Grable, Secretary and Treasurer; Hon. Barksdale Mellett, President H. H. Cherry, and Miss Ella Lewis.

USEFUL HARRODSBURG CITIZEN AND INTELLECTUAL GENTLEMAN DEAD.

The Harrodsburg Herald of July 10th gives an interesting account of a meeting of the Harrodsburg Historical Society, at which its president, Hon. W. W. Stephenson presided. An extra edition of the same paper gives an account of the sudden death of this worthy gentleman.

Mr. Stephenson was taken suddenly ill in the office of attorney C. E. Rankin; medical assistance was summoned, but he died before he could be sufficiently revived to be removed from the office.

Mr. Stephenson was one of the leading citizens in Central Kentucky, a striking figure in democratic politics, he had served in both houses of the Kentucky legislature, being a member of the Senate at the time of the death of Gov. Gobel, and a leader among the advocates of peace in those troublous times. Prominent in church circles, for many years a deacon in the Christian church, and at the time of his death a teacher of the largest bible class in his church; a noted historian, more conversant perhaps with Kentucky history than any citizen of the state, philanthropist and elegant gentleman.

Mr. Stephenson was 57 years of age. He was never married but lived with his sisters Misses Mary and Martha Stephenson in Harrodsburg.

Mr. Stephenson was well known in Lancaster and Garrard county, where he has both as an attorney and socially made many visits, and has many warm friends who grieve to hear of his sudden taking.

Go to Church Message Twentieth Century Method of Awakening Religious Fervor

GO TO CHURCH!

In the brief time that the GO TO CHURCH movement has been so widely heralded throughout the country there has been a big increase in the attendance at churches. Clergymen declare that RELIGION NEVER WAS DEAD. All that it needed was an awakening. AND IT HAS AWAKENED.

But there are thousands today who have not yet heeded the GO TO CHURCH call. It is to these that this appeal is directed. Do you believe in a Supreme Being? If you do, is he not worthy of worship? No matter how derelict you have been in the past, the church awaits you. If you haven't been to church in a decade all the more reason that you GO TO CHURCH now.

AS A MATTER OF FACT THERE NEVER WAS A TIME WHEN PEOPLE HAD FORGOTTEN CHURCH. IN LATTER DAYS THERE HAS BEEN A WAVE OF MATERIALISM AND UNGODLINESS, BUT RELIGION ONLY REQUIRED AN AWAKENING CRY. THE GO TO CHURCH MOVEMENT IS AS A PRAIRIE FIRE. IN EVERY VILLAGE, HAMLET, TOWN AND CITY THE CRY HAS BEEN TAKEN UP. THIS GO TO CHURCH MESSAGE IS A TWENTIETH CENTURY METHOD OF AWAKENING RELIGIOUS FERVOR. IT IS SUCCEEDING.

Your part in this splendid movement. When you read this ask your neighbor if he has read it. KEEP BOOSTING. Some people say that GOING TO CHURCH IS GETTING TO BE A FAD NOWADAYS. If that is so there are some fads worth while, after all. When one considers that all the churches ask is a brief time every Sunday morning it is hard to conceive how any one can refrain from performing this plain duty.

GO TO CHURCH next Sunday!

GO TO CHURCH the following Sunday!

GO TO CHURCH every Sunday!

A WOMAN'S CHARMS

Beautiful hair, fluffy, lustrous, abundant and free from dandruff, is one of woman's greatest charms—it's her main delight—yet many who would be most attractive but for their streaked, thin and lifeless hair, think there is no remedy and that pretty hair is a gift of nature. Beautiful hair is really a matter of care and attention. Parisian Sage, when rubbed into the scalp and applied to the hair, will work wonders—you will be surprised and delighted with the first application—not only will the hair appear abundant, soft, fluffy, radiant with life, but really doubly beautiful.

Parisian Sage supplies hair and scalp needs. It surely removes dandruff with one application and cleanses the hair of all dirt and excessive oil. It is an inexpensive, scientific tonic, and contains nothing to injure the hair or scalp. It can be secured from R. E. McRoberts or at any drug store.

RICHARD P. ERNST, CANDIDATE FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR.

Successful Lawyer and Business Man Seeks the Republican Nomination—Graduate of "Old Centre" College—Prominent In Religious and Educational Work In Covington and His Native State

Richard P. Ernst, Candidate for Republican Nomination U. S. Senator.

Covington, Ky.—(Special)—Richard P. Ernst, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, is a native Kentuckian, having been born in Covington in 1858, where he has lived all of his life, and where his parents lived.

He received his primary education in the schools at Covington and afterward graduated from "Old Centre" College, at Danville, with the Class of '78, winning the valedictory honors of his class.

Later he graduated from the Law School of the University of Cincinnati, in a class of which William H. Taft was a member. Shortly after completing his studies he married Miss Susan Brent, granddaughter of Chas. Brent, who was for many years a prominent citizen of Paris, Ky. They have two children, one son and one daughter, now grown.

Mr. Ernst, because of his splendid business ability and attractive personality, early in life became prominently identified with the business interests of Northern Kentucky, and through his Covington and Cincinnati law offices has attained great success in his profession.

Life-Long Republican.

Politically Mr. Ernst has been a life-long Republican. For many years he has devoted both his time and his means to a very liberal degree for the success of his party. He was for many years a member of the State Central Committee, was its chairman when the party achieved its most notable triumphs in the state, has been delegate to several national conventions, and in many other ways has served his party, often at great personal sacrifice.

He has been able to maintain terms of friendship with all elements and factions in his party, and if nominated will receive the support of Republicans and independents without regard to any former personal prejudices or factional differences.

Interested in Church and School.

Mr. Ernst is a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Covington, and an elder in that congregation. For many years he has been President of the Covington Young Men's Christian Association, which is one of the most successful and widely popular institutions of its kind in the country, as it appeals to boys of all denominations.

Mr. Ernst retains a wide interest in educational affairs. He is not only a member of the Board of Trustees of his alma mater, "Old Centre," but is also a trustee of the Western College for Women, at Oxford, O., and is a Statistics show there are 834 illiterates in Garrard Co. It seems appalling, it should be humiliating to every right thinking man and woman which would be overwhelming to many of us if we did not know that what has been accomplished to wipe illiteracy out of other counties can be done for ours, if we will only put our shoulders to the wheel.

God has bestowed upon the children of Garrard Co., the inestimable gift of good health and good minds and it is our duty to preserve them. The mind has a certain vegetative power which cannot be wholly idle. If it is not laid out and cultivated into beautiful thoughts and beautiful deeds it will shoot up bad thoughts and bad deeds. From this then is seen the necessity of careful mental training, a training of the mental faculties in the right direction. If our boys and girls are taught how to think they will soon learn what to think. It is impossible to over estimate what it would mean if we would wipe illiteracy out of Garrard Co. True, it takes money to maintain our public school system if it is progressive, but it is money well applied and repays fourfold.

Look upon the educated boys and girls of Garrard county and compare them with the uneducated, see which class fills jails and penitentiaries and then you must certainly concede the support you have already given your school, has not been given in vain or trusted to hands that have misapplied it. Now the time has come when we must do more than send our own children to school, we must see that every boy and girl of school age is in school, if they are not and we must help enforce our laws along this line. "Knowledge is power," Garrard will become a power when illiteracy is stamped out and not until then. What Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart has done for Rowan Co., we can do for Garrard. She devoted patient study and work to wipe illiteracy out of her own county and now she proposes to help every county in the state, knowing the reward it offers is full compensation for all the hours of weary, self-denying labor.

The Record makes an appeal to every man and woman to help in this great work.

The State wide primary is now only fifteen days ahead. There are three candidates for the long and three for the short term to be voted for upon the Democratic ticket in this election.

In this section of the State from the present indication and interest taken there will be a small vote cast.

Thus far in the contest we have carried out the general policy of this paper as to democratic nominations and have undertaken to treat the candidacy of all fairly, at the same time reserving and exercising our privilege of supporting the democrats we think best suited for the nominations. We are gratified to see the rapid growth of the candidacy of Congressman A. O. Stanley in favor. Some newspapers who have heretofore published that he had no chance for the nomination are now seeing the situation very differently and are stating in their news columns that is a close contest between Stanley and Beckham. And it is now generally predicted that the contest will be close. From no source do we have any reports favorable to Governor McCreary and it is generally conceded that the count will show the Governor a poor third.

We publish in this weeks issue the speech delivered by Mr. Stanley at the National Theater in Louisville which gave such a boost to his candidacy.

It is an effective reply to certain newspapers that have constantly misrepresented the issues in this contest and they have many times treated Mr. Stanley unfairly. Many democrats, we think, have been lead to change their support after reading this speech.

Numerous democrats of Kentucky who have been supporting Mr. Beckham have resented the activity of the Louisville Post and are unwilling to follow the lead of that paper and its editor. The people will consider the merits of the candidates during the next fifteen days and we believe will settle the contest in a fairly conducted primary that will leave little business behind, and who ever may receive the majority at the polls will be acceptable to the party and receive its united support in the November election.

Impure water is charged being largely responsible for the epidemic of typhoid fever at Henderson. Owing to the drought water is low all over the State and it behoves every locality to look well to the water they use. This is also the time of the year when all should join hands in trying to eliminate the fly. One case of fever and the fly will spread it all over the town and country.

TYPHOID FEVER EPIDEMIC.

Impure water is charged being largely responsible for the epidemic of typhoid fever at Henderson. Owing to the drought water is low all over the State and it behoves every locality to look well to the water they use. This is also the time of the year when all should join hands in trying to eliminate the fly. One case of fever and the fly will spread it all over the town and country.

HOG CHOLERA.

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station officials say that hog cholera is prevalent in all parts of the State and are sending out a warning to all parts of the State. The best known method against the disease is the use anti-hog cholera serum at the proper time. The State Experiment Station is prepared to furnish this serum to farmers free of charge and will supply any information upon request.

The State has gone to large expense to protect hog raisers against loss and every farmer should immunize their hogs and run no risk.

STANFORD TO HAVE THE BEST FAIR IN HER HISTORY.

We do not know whether or not it is due to the fact that a Garrard county man is Secretary, but Stanford is to have the best Fair this year in her history. The leading horse men of the state are already speaking for stall room and signifying their intention of being there with their "strings", and an unprecedented show of first class stock is expected. With Danville out of the list of Blue Grass fairs this season, all of the fair going people of the adjacent counties will undoubtedly make their arrangements to attend the Stanford exhibition on August 19-20 and 21st and our good neighbors will be taxed to their uttermost to entertain their guests upon that occasion. However, they are past masters at the art of entertaining, and the probable heavy increase in numbers inspires no fear in their hearts.

As a general thing we are prone to complain before we are really hurt; for instance, before the recent splendid rains, to hear the farmers complain and predict, we were upon the brink of famine and ruin, when in point of fact very little actual damage was accomplished by the lack of rain, at least nothing like one would infer from the general tone of the farmer. It is true that some little hardship was experienced by some, and in some instances actual loss occurred to some crops, but this was more than overshadowed by the munificent crops of other varieties, and taken upon the whole, we have much more reason to rejoice than to complain.

BURDETT IN FORM.

The Lancaster Eclipse Baseball team won from the Frankfort Cubs, the first game of the season, 7 to 1. Frankfort's only run was made in the first inning. The feature of the game was the pitching and catching of Burdett and Emerson and sensational fielding of Shorts, Perkins, Anderson and Lewis.

FREE TRIP TO STATE FAIR.

The management of the State Fair has announced that it will give a free trip to the State Fair to be held in Louisville September 14-19 to one farmer boy in every county, the choice to be made by competitive examination. In the 120 counties of Kentucky there is an abundance of future farming material and 120 boys will bring back to their respective counties knowledge which their forefathers never knew or practiced. A boy must represent Garrard.

MORRIS.

Miss Flora Morris a popular young lady of the Hubbell section of Lincoln county, died at her home Sunday and after funeral services at McKendree church at Hubbell on Monday, her remains were interred in the Lancaster cemetery. Miss Morris' death was due to tuberculosis from which she had been a long sufferer. She was a daughter of Mr. W. S. Morris.

PRUITT.

After an illness of several months, of cancer, Mrs. Georgiana Pruitt, aged 57 years and wife of W. S. Pruitt, died at her home on the Crab Orchard pile this morning at five o'clock. Mrs. Pruitt was a life long member of the Baptist church, with a noble character. She leaves besides her husband, three sons, Lee, Nathan and Claude, all of whom reside in the county.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Baptist church Friday morning at 11 o'clock, by Rev. J. W. Beagle, after which interment will take place in the Lancaster cemetery.

BEST.

Mrs. Mary Ann Best, aged about 76 years and widow of Ebeneezer Best, died this morning at Crab Orchard after one weeks illness of Pneumonia. Mrs. Best with her grand daughter, Mrs. Blanpeid, went to Crab Orchard about two weeks ago and being in feeble health, she contracted Pneumonia from which she never seemed able to throw off, owing to heart failure in the last few hours. The news came as a great shock, as it was thought yesterday she was much better.

She was a noble Christian lady and a devoted member of the Presbyterian church at this place. Mrs. Best is survived by two sisters, Mrs. F. L. Adams and Miss Ruth Best of Wyoming and was a cousin of Mrs. R. K. Conn of Paint Lick and Mrs. Mattie Lawson, of Stanford.

She leaves two grand-children, Mrs. Jack Blanpeid, of this city, who was constantly at her bedside during her entire illness and Mr. Jack Best, of Missouri, who was telegraphed for last Sunday and arrived before his grandmother's death. Her remains were brought to her late home this morning, at which place services will be held Friday afternoon conducted by Rev. J. Rockwell Smith and at her request, interment will take place in the Lancaster cemetery.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Messrs Benjamin Woods and Sam Douglass, of Danville, were here Sunday, the pleasant guests Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ware.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neighbors who have been enjoying an outing in Florida are here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bourne.

Misses Myrtle and Beulah Hendren of Madison, Co. and Miss Allie Hendren of this city were guests Saturday, and Sunday of Miss Bessie Guley.

Mr. Parker Gregory and sister, Mrs. W. A. Arnold, were in Danville for the burial of their uncle, the late Mr. R. Parker Gregory of Louisville.

Mrs. M. K. Denny and guest Miss Miller of Richmond were honorees at a course dinner on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Robert Walker at Paint Lick.

Misses Jennie Smith and Cora Durham of Crab Orchard and Miss Martha Campbell of Barbourville, Ky., were the weekend guest of Miss Shirley Mahan.

Misses Angie and Hannah Bourne, entertained very delightfully last Saturday evening, in honor of their attractive guests, Misses Alia Rigney of Hustonville, and Myrme Lee Marsee and Catherine Bourne of this place.

Miss Bettie West left Thursday for a visit to friends and relatives in Winchester Versailles and Lexington.

Reverend J. W. Beagle spent Monday in Butler, Ky., with his mother. The day was an enjoyable one to guests as it was to celebrate the 77th birthday of Mrs. Beagle. Reverend J. W. Beagle will go from there for a week's visit with friends in Covington.

Claud Rice Gaines entertained at a 6 o'clock dinner at his home on Water street the guest being Charles Connor Brown Jr. and Miss Margaret Barrett Brown of Louisville. Delicious refreshments were served to the youthful guests.

Miss Hallie Brown of Lancaster, has been visiting Miss Ella Thompson ... Miss Bettie West, who has been with Danville friends, has returned to her home in Lancaster ... Miss Edna Berkele who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Noel Jean, returned to her home in Lancaster Friday ... Mrs. Theodore Curry, of Lancaster, and Mrs. John L. Anderson, of Washington City, are guests of Mrs. Fisher Gaines ... Master Joe Cabell Ramsey of Lancaster, is visiting Miss Nancy Goodloe ... Mrs. Ellen Owsley Poor, of Lancaster, is the guest of Mrs. Davis Dunn ... Danville Messenger.

Remember the quarterly meeting of the Methodist church next Saturday and Sunday. Preaching Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, by Dr. Arnold, also Saturday night. Preaching Sunday morning by Rev. C. H. Greer, of Stanford.

Bretton Pollitt is now in a very interesting meeting at Preachersville, having begun these services last Sunday.

A report comes from Stanford that a hard storm last week in Lincoln county was so severe and the hill so large and in such quantities as to kill the fish in Logan's creek.

We had nothing like that here, although we did have a severe hail storm, but those who have read of a Lincoln county farmer raising water melons on the bottle and another one teaching geese to rid his crops of vermin, are prepared to believe almost anything may happen over there.

Two hundred guests at Crab Orchard.

Last Saturday and Sunday found over two hundred guests at Crab Orchard and more arriving on every train.

This well known and famous watering place needs no introduction to the people of this community; for good service, well prepared meals and reasonable rates, it is unequalled in Kentucky. Quite a number are registered from Lancaster and more are to go this week.

GREAT ADVANTAGE IN FRUIT CULTURE

SPECIAL AGRICULTURAL TRAIN WILL MAKE A TEN-DAY TOUR.

STARTS ON JULY FIFTEEN

Train Equipped With Most Interesting and Instructive Exhibits That Can Be Secured for the Trip.

On July 15th the Agricultural Experiment Station will send out from Lexington an agricultural special train, which will make a ten-day tour of Eastern Kentucky in the effort to add interest to the proper tillage of the soil of that section. It is, of course, understood that through the mountains of Kentucky the area of land suitable for general cropping is limited and a system of agriculture suitable to these conditions must sooner or later be adopted.

In view of these facts the Experiment Station wishes to show to the people of Eastern Kentucky the great advantages of fruit raising and general horticulture, also the advisability of going in heavily into poultry production in a section so finely adapted to the production of choice fruit and poultry.

In addition to these two specialties there have been prepared for this train exhibits bearing on the lumbering industry, and, as in other branches, the best authorities have been engaged to lecture.

The train will be equipped with the most interesting and instructive exhibits that can be prepared, and it will be a great disappointment to the Experiment Station if the people do not visit this train in large numbers, take a lively interest in its mission, and profit by its teachings.

TRAIN WILL RUN ACCORDING TO THE FOLLOWING SCHEDULE.

THE KITCHEN GARDEN AND HOME ORCHARD

Gardening and Fruit Growing Appeals to Man—Profit Made From Small Plot.

Perhaps there is no branch of agriculture that appeals to man more than that of gardening and fruit growing. The desire to see something growing as the result of our own efforts is by no means confined to the man living in the country, for it appeals to the man living in the city as well. In a great many cases it is sad to relate that the city man, with his small back garden, too often puts his country brother to shame when it comes to the matter of a home orchard or, better still, a kitchen garden. The average man in the country justifies himself for the lack of a garden because of the lack of time or more often because gardening is woman's work. While it is true that the work necessary for the proper care of the orchard and garden often conflicts with the more important farm operations, still it is not a legitimate excuse, because the satisfaction and profits derived are generally greater in proportion than those derived from other crops.

The profit derived from a good kitchen garden, where asparagus, rhubarb, horseradish and other vegetables are grown, is almost invaluable from the standpoint of health as well as wealth. Who does not relish a meal where one of these vegetables is served after living all winter on the heavy nitrogenous foods that make up the major portion of the bill of fare during the cold months?

Fortunately this condition does not hold true for all the sections of the state. In the mountains one can not help being impressed with the number of small kitchen gardens that are located near the house and for the most part tended by the housewives. In this garden one will find all sorts of vegetables that do well during the summer and early fall before the frost appears. At the same time one can not help being impressed by the absence of hardy vegetables that will keep well during the winter months. The small fruits, such as the strawberry, gooseberry and raspberry all do well, as evidenced by the fact that they are to be found growing wild on the hillsides, still like the late vegetables they are conspicuous by their absence.

It is possible that a great deal could be made in many sections of Eastern Kentucky by planting out the smaller fruits and providing means for canning them at home if necessary. All of the mining districts consume great quantities of canned fruits and these could be easily put up in many cases right in the mining districts, for often times mining operations are stopped during the summer months when the small fruit crop is at its height. While small fruits offer quicker returns, one should not lose sight of the more stable fruits like the apple, pear, peach and plum. The apple especially gives great promise in Eastern Kentucky. The peach and plum are more uncertain because of the climate and the pear is very susceptible to blight.

The many coves located towards the tops of the mountains offer excellent opportunities for the production of the highest grade of fruit. The two prime requisites for apple culture namely, good air and water drainage are provided in nearly every section.

The question of marketing will always play a most important part in successful fruit growing. Kentucky annually imports a great deal more fruit than she produces, even in view of the fact that the state ranks fifth in the number of bearing trees. A large amount of this imported fruit is shipped from the West and from Michigan where labor and the allied means of production are very much higher than they are in Kentucky. An authority on this subject recently stated that it costs one dollar and forty-three cents to produce and market a bushel of western fruit on our eastern markets. If the western growers can make a profit after this excessive charge, the Kentucky growers should be able to equal it at least with the market at their own door.

Disease and insect pests cause a great deal of loss because no systematic effort has been made to keep them in control, and undoubtedly this accounts for the great damage so often noted. San Jose scale is especially bad and it promises to wipe out many of the old orchards entirely. Although it appears very bad to the casual observer, it has often been termed a blessing in disguise where proper means of control are employed.

A great many farmers feel that they can not afford to wait long enough for an orchard to mature. It is true that it takes a long time for an orchard to come into bearing, but if the plan of growing small fruits as a side line is followed while the trees are growing, a profitable income will thereby be derived.

The fruit grown in Eastern Kentucky is equal to that produced in any other section. The standard varieties like Rome, Grimes, Jonathan, York Imperial, not to mention the Berry Red, Champion, King David, Black Ben and many others that are not so commonly found.

People interested in fruit growing and gardening throughout Eastern Kentucky will do well to visit the horticultural car that is soon to traverse the railroads in that section. Various orchard practices, such as planting, cultivation, pruning and spraying, will be fully discussed. In addition samples of the various diseases and insect pests will be on exhibition and the proper means of control will be fully explained.

REMARKABLE MEETING GIVES AN IMPETUS TO STANLEY'S CAMPAIGN

Second District Congressman Addresses Vast Crowd of Supporters That Throns National Theater

Louisville, Ky., July 6, 1914.—What was without a doubt one of the most remarkable political meetings ever held in Louisville was that last night when Congressman A. O. Stanley, of the Second district, candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, presented his claims to the voters of the Fifth district at the National Theater.

The meeting was remarkable in that it was a distinct innovation, being probably the first time in the history of Louisville that a candidate for a Democratic State-wide nomination addressed a mass meeting of voters here, and, secondly, it was remarkable for the crowd which packed the theater auditorium, boxes, stage and a large part of the galleries. The crowd, which was estimated at 2,500, was conceded one of the most representative assemblages that ever faced a speaker in Louisville, and no fifty persons left the theater from the time Mr. Stanley began until he closed his speech, which required an hour and a half to deliver. Many women graced the boxes, and they showed the keenest interest in what the speaker had to say.

Scathing Denunciation.

With keen shafts and rapier thrusts Mr. Stanley went after his opponent Gov. J. C. W. Beckham and his aides, Percy Haly and Sam Shackelford, but he reached the climax in his denunciation of Richard W. Knott, editor of the Louisville Evening Post, as a political renegade and harlot, who exercised a contaminating influence politically, socially and morally, and "whose relents hate I wear as a badge of honor." For scathing denunciation nothing like it was ever heard in Louisville and the vast crowd roared its approval as he fired every shaft home.

Mr. Stanley pilloried Beckham for his alliance with Knott, whom he characterized as having condoned the assassination of Gov. William Goebel and had venomously assailed Democratic nominees. "This is the vile sheet," said he, "that has the insufferable impudence to dictate to the Democrats of Kentucky whom they shall choose as their Senator."

Where Does He Stand?

Charging Beckham with cowardice on the "wet" and "dry" question and playing the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde role on this issue as the exigencies of the situation demanded, Mr. Stanley demanded that Beckham come out in the open and declare to the people of Kentucky whether or not he favored nation-wide prohibition or State-wide prohibition, or both.

Mr. Stanley was greeted with a rousing ovation when he entered the theater and the demonstration lasted several minutes after he was introduced and before he was permitted to speak.

Introduced By Judge Edwards.

The meeting was presided over by Judge James P. Edwards, who introduced Mr. Stanley. "This splendid audience shows the handwriting on the wall," was Judge Edwards' opening sentence. He congratulated the Democratic party on its splendid administration of national and State affairs, and its ability to do things under the matchless leadership of a Woodrow Wilson. He congratulated the Democrats of Kentucky on having such a candidate for United States Senator as Augustus Owsley Stanley, who stands for every principle advocated by President Wilson and the National Democratic platform. Judge Edwards referred to the era of "machine rule" that was the chief characteristic of the "Beckham regime," and he paid his respects to Beckham, whose chief mouthpiece now was the "traitorous Louisville Post."

Full Text of Stanley's Speech.

"You are assembled here on the eve of the exercise of a priceless privilege," began Mr. Stanley. "Vested with absolute and sovereign power, you sit in judgment upon the fitness of your public servants—a high tribunal, from whose decision there is no appeal. Learned judges, members of Congress, who aspire to posts of honor and distinction must come to you, like a blind beggar with a cup."

"This is the only land, and you are the only people, where such a measure of liberty was ever enjoyed by the citizens."

"During 4,000 years and more of Christian and Pagan civilization men accepted, without protest, the monstrous political heresy that one man was born to be a king and another destined from his birth to be a vassal or a slave. That all power and all authority, liberty itself, is enjoyed by the grace of some royal grant came trick-duty of advising this body, clothed with the right to veto measures which in his opinion were inexpedient or unconstitutional, with whom it was expected to act in concert, for the success of the party and the good of the country, depends upon harmony between the executive and the legislative branches of the government; that Governor's will was openly flaunted, and those very men who exercised this power did not hesitate to boast that private citizens who had organized and controlled the Legislature, had come into that body and the people whose will they are supposed to express and obey.

"Whenever it occurs that either a Legislature or a Congress can be organized and rendered subservient to the will of a coterie of cunning and designing lobbyists and politicians, the interests of the people who elected them and this free government is a mockery, a delusion and a sham. That is invisible government. No interest was or ever will be able to corrupt or control a free people. No privileged interest, no lobbyist or corruptionist will ever be fool enough to attempt it.

"It is only by breaking this inherent and necessary cord between the public and the public service that the powers of government are ever perverted to the plunder of a free people and the vice use of avaricious and designing men."

Sinister Control.

"This is the essence of that abominable thing known as invisible government. It was this secret and sinister control of the people's representatives and the people's government that gave effect to Republicanism from power and the will bury it in deserved oblivion. A great jurist and a great statesman met the expectancy and gave voice to the will of a liberty-loving people when he demanded a new freedom, a freedom from invisible government, a freedom from interference by private interests with this country's control of its own affairs. It was that reitered demand for this new freedom that made a college president in a State normally 50,000 Republican, its Democratic Governor by a majority of 20,000. It was that same courageous heart heard by forty-eight States that made him the nominee of the Democratic party for the presidency. It was upon that issue that the Democratic party elected Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey. In the greatest speech of his life a few months before his nomination he declared: 'Now, what has been the matter? The matter has been that the Government of this country was privately controlled and that the business of this country was privately controlled; and that we did not have genuine representative Government, and that the people of this country did not have control of their own affairs.'

"All that Jefferson and all that the wisdom and the courage of the fathers could do was to invest us with this supreme power. It remains for the people, and the people alone, to exercise it. External vigilance is the price of liberty. No constitution, however perfect, no government, however flawless, can ever, or will ever, protect and preserve the liberties of a people who are not ceaselessly vigilant in the exercise of the power inherent in them."

Freedom of Kentucky.

"We loudly proclaim this a Government of and for and by the people. Is it such a Government here in Kentucky at this hour? Do the people of Kentucky exercise the actual control of their own affairs?"

"The Right Emperors were all elected. Tiburio Caracella or Nero could not have been more monstrous had they inherited the purple to which they were elected.

"To be free a people must do something more than elect officials. Those officials must, when elected, act through and for the people, whose servants they are.

"For that reason the members of the Legislature and of Congress are called representatives. They should be in every deed the willing and responsive medium through whom a sovereign people exercise their inherent authority."

"Now, what have you to do with the writing of the law which governs you? That law you must obey; violate the State or Federal statutes and you lose your liberty, your property or your life. What have you to do with the writing of those rules of conduct that touch you so nearly and upon which your liberty, your life and your property depend?"

"A Legislature has but recently adjourned in the city of Frankfort. Had any citizen here appeared in the galleries of that body and objected to the passage of any bill then pending, he would have been ordered out of the House. Had he interrupted when the Federal Congress was considering some measure, he would probably have landed in jail.

"If the citizen has no voice in the actual writing of the law, what part, after all, has he in this so-called free government? He can participate in its operation in one way only, that is by having him who proposes to write or execute the law to take the people into his confidence, tell them in advance candidly and courageously his position upon all public questions, and let them know exactly what he proposes to do, if entrusted with the high honors and stern obligations of a legislator.

"If the electors approve of his policies, if they desire to have him do the things which he proposes, then they commission him as their agent, their attorney, in fact, their actual representative, to write the laws for them. There, as a Senator from Kentucky, he writes with the hand of 200,000 Democrats; he speaks with the voice of 3,000,000 people."

Outside Interference.

"Here in Kentucky is the law written in obedience to your will, by men responsive to you alone. For weeks before the last Legislature assembled it was boldly proclaimed that private citizens, having no official relation to the Kentucky Legislature whatever, not members of that body, or intruded by the law with the power to interfere with its deliberations—that a few private citizens would organize and control it, would suggest the men whom that body should elect as presiding officers, command it to the minutest detail, even to the selection of pages and cloakroom keepers; would sit in its secret caucuses and determine the policies of the party and the conduct of the lawmakers of a free people."

"The Governor of the State, upon whom the Constitution imposes the duty of advising this body, clothed with the right to veto measures which in his opinion were inexpedient or unconstitutional, with whom it was expected to act in concert, for the success of the party and the good of the country, depends upon harmony between the executive and the legislative branches of the government; that Governor's will was openly flaunted, and those very men who exercised this power did not hesitate to boast that private citizens who had organized and controlled the Legislature, had come into that body and the people whose will they are supposed to express and obey."

ies and the control of legislative patronage, and in the conduct of Mr. Beckham's campaign for a seat in the Federal Senate."

Parts of the Party.

"Will the Democratic party in Kentucky permit Sam Shackelford and Percy Haly to name an ambassador from a free and sovereign State? Do the people of Kentucky wish to reach the ear or secure the favor of a Senator by paying obsequies to a Haly or a Shackelford? The Republican party owes its birth, its life and its death to special and privileged interests. Haly and Shackelford were an essential part of its organization and its being. For that reason the Republican press of Kentucky has already nominated Mr. Beckham and accepted the lobbyist and trickster as the essential and necessary parts of the program.

"Even wash day you read in the columns of the Lexington Leader that I am about to retire from this race that I have mistreated and deceived Gov. McCreary, that Olle James has organized a Federal machine for the purpose of riding me into place and power. Why do the Lexington Leader, the Louisville Herald and the Evening Post seek Mr. Beckham's nomination and my defeat? Either because they feel assured that if nominated he will be defeated, or because they find in him and his associates the ugly attributes of Republicanism under the convenient mask of Democracy. Who today stands as political godfather, philosopher, guide and friend, self-constituted apostol and panegyrist for this political triumvirate? Richard W. Knott and the Evening Post. And when and where was Dick Knott ever received into Democratic fellowship or commissioned to outline the policies for the party of Jefferson and Jackson. W. Knott.

"You are told that Mr. Beckham is met by vast and cheering throngs. Long before his arrival at the place of speaking, hours before he even opens his mouth, you are told exactly what he says. The first edition of the Louisville Evening Post goes to press at 11:30. The other day Mr. Beckham spoke at West Liberty at 1:30, and yet two hours prior to that meeting the paper stated the building was packed to the doors and that a large crowd congregated on the outside.

"At Lebanon a gentleman closely identified with his campaign telephoned to this same Evening Post a detailed description of the number of persons who sat in rapt and motionless silence, and burst into thunderous applause, before the Court House doors were ever opened or a single man in attendance."

and voracious triumvirate who hope shortly to prey upon a deluded party and a prostrate people.

"When Mr. Beckham expresses an opinion upon any public question or announces his candidacy for office, it must emanate first from the 'Evening Post.' In this fight his colors fly from a fortress reeking with corruption and dripping with the blood of a murdered Governor."

"I had a right to expect that this battle would be fought upon a Democratic field; that my opponent would meet me upon Democratic ground. I challenge his right to fire his guns from that black and forbidding fortress, or to stab a fellow-Democrat with a knife sharpened upon the flint heart of Richard W. Knott and dripping with the gore of butchered Democrats. It would be bad enough did this ugly emissary of all that is evil in Republicanism confine himself to the truth. His paper rocks with every form of transparent and deliberate falsehood. Its news columns are as false and as fabricated as its editorials. Reporters purporting to come from one section are deliberately concocted and planted and a demagogue.

"Calumny For Bryan.

"Bryan himself does not escape calumny at the hands of the head of this Knott-Haly-Shackelford triumvirate.

"On September 25, 1908, Mr. Bryan was cartooned on the first page of this abominable Post, carrying a banner reading 'No Prohibitionist Can Be a Democrat.' His belt was made of whisky bottles, labeled 'Booze,' the buckle was a beer mallet, and his breast was incised in a beer keg. On September 11, 1908, it declared that 'In Indiana it is now admitted that a vote for Bryan and the other Democratic nominees is a vote for the liquor interests, and a vote against reasonable regulation of the liquor traffic.'

"Mr. Beckham himself found favor in the eyes of Richard W. Knott as long as he persisted in denouncing Mr. Shackelford, the Standard Oil Company and the Tobacco Trust. It was only after he found Sam and Percy and Crippen cuddled up together as peaceful and cozy as pups in a basket that he lifted his unclean hands in political benediction.

"This arch-enemy of Democracy, this traducer of Carmack and Kern, Harmon and Marshall, Goebel and Bryan is not only the panegyrist, but the dictator in this unique campaign. More than a year ago the Democratic editors of Kentucky, in convention assembled, outlined their policy toward the Democratic candidates in a resolution adopted without a dissenting voice, realizing the necessity of choosing the best and the strongest standard bearer for the state, and submitted with the convention stamp and the ink was a battle banner that awaited us—in the last presidential election Wilson's vote exceeding that of his two Republican opponents by a little over 1,000,000, and that in all probability the Democratic party, determined as it seemed, would contest every foot of the ground with the chosen champion of Democracy. They agreed to urge Democrats everywhere to select their candidates for the Senate with an eye single to probity, his experience and his capacity.

"In a recent editorial the Louisville Times, looking beyond the first Saturday in August to the 10th of November, opened its columns to sift the candidates in order that the people might be better judge for the final contest. Mr. Knott immediately took issue with the Democratic editors of the State. He assumed to speak not only for himself, but for the Beckham-Haly-Shackelford regime.

No Self-Solicitude.

"I do not complain that the columns of this sheet reek with every form of denunciation of me. I do not complain that I am subjected to it by every form of induction and abuse as an official in a man. I am painted as a sort of a demagogue and a faker, the supine tool of the liquor interests, a scoundrel seeking commendation nor the support of the public to corruption and for me to be held responsible for the sins of others.

"How this Republican sheet must envy the amazed Democracy of Kentucky with the information that while I am a bold, bad man, Mr. Beckham is sweet and neat, with pretty little feet, and that he has never been kissed in his life, and that he is merely as sane and safe as Knott's once been ideal, William Howard Taft, that he is as coy and modest and retiring as that gentle and dove-like statesman, Theodore Roosevelt, and that he is nearly as great of human life as Powers or Roosevelt or Youstey.

"Were I the only Democrat who had deserved by honest and faithful service the implacable hostility of Mr. Knott, were I the only Democrat who had fallen the victim of his deliberate perversion of the truth, there might be found somewhere a member of my own party who might come under the influence of his wiles.

"I am the last, not the first, to be honored by his opposition.

He has earned and he has received the continued commendation and support of a splendid constituency. I hope soon to see him the chairman of the great Committee on Appropriations.

"William Goebel made the remarkable achievement of being the keynote of his campaign Dick Knott, then an alleged Democrat, in obedience to the interests which he served there and is serving now, instantly became a vicious and rancorous Republican.

"William Goebel was denounced as an assassin, a flannel-mouthed incendiary, a designing demagogue, and when traduced, slandered, misrepresented and falsehood all combined did not avail to shake the faith of the people in their valiant champion, this same Louisville Post became the intelligent and the herald by which assassins were notified that their presence was needed in the capital of the Commonwealth.

"Dick Knott's paper was the bugle call that rang through hill and dale and assembled those turbulent spirits who were shortly to make the scene of disorder and at last of murder, when when they were encamped around and about the capital of the State and courts and General Assembly were menaced by their sinister presence, who defended the assembling of this so-called peaceable army," Richard W. Knott and the Louisville Evening Post.

"When the General Assembly were driven in terror through the capital, chased with naked bayonets through the streets of Frankfort, who condemned the monstrous outrage? Richard W. Knott and the Louisville Evening Post.

"When for the first time in the history of civilized government ruffians invaded the sacred temples of justice and reverend judges, the ermine upon their shoulders, were forced to flee for their lives and leave precious records of the Commonwealth for sack and pillage by ruthless and brutal savages, who danced with fiendish glee while the damnable work was done? HOG CHOLERA FACTS.

Hog cholera is an infectious disease of swine in which the lymphatic glands, intestines, lungs, kidneys and liver are commonly inflamed.

Healthy hogs contract the disease by eating feed or drinking water that is infected with the producing organism eliminated from the body of the cholera hog.

Hog cholera is more virulent or acute during the summer and fall months than it is during the winter and spring months.

Hog cholera outbreaks usually last two years. The disease then dies out in a neighborhood unless there are new importations.

The length of time elapsing between the exposure of the animal to the disease and the development of noticeable symptoms varies from a few days to two or three weeks.

The early symptoms are tremors, fever, depressed appearance, marked weakness, staggering gait, constipation or diarrhea, labored breathing and convulsions.

Death may occur within a few hours or a few days. Recovery seldom occurs.

Healthy hogs possess a slight degree of resistance against disease, and this factor plays no small part in the control of hog cholera.

Unhygienic crowded quarters, lack of exercise and wrong methods of feeding overcome natural immunity and are secondary factors in the spread of the disease.

White-wash, lime, chloride of lime and starch dips are disinfectants commonly used.

anything: When the Democrats of Louisville agree to kiss the hand that smote them, to lick the boot that kicked them, to turn to the man who made them six years has cussed them, then he will kindly consent to permit three millions of Kentuckians to treat them as civilized human beings and to welcome them into that sweet fellowship which is known around the world among all Kentuckians.

"Mr. Beckham, nominated for the Senate under the auspices of Knott and Shadford and myself, we immediately inaugurate a new era of political, industrial and social good feeling.

"Mr. Beckham is most pleased to the country of Louisville and the surrounding states will come to see them some more when Beckham is elected. It will be cheering news to the mechanics to learn that customers from these surrounding countries will again deal in Louisville.

"Mr. Beckham and Haly and Shack are on the job. It will come like a burst of sunshine into the darkened headquarters of the political organizations of Kentucky. The old politicians will no longer be brutes and brutes at each ensuing Democratic convention after the passing of the word around to the country and the towns that damning Louisville is no longer to be the trunk of the backbone of politics crooked and in a grammar of scheming demagogues, and that a man can be Mayor or Councilman in a town without being in the courts of condemnation in convention.

"Let us all join in singing "Hail to the Chief," and stand ready to the slippery slope we have agreed to set this upon the map of Kentucky.

Native Kentuckians.

"I have read, or somewhere I have heard it read, that the merchants and bankers and business men of this country are almost entirely ignorant, bold and raised in the hills and dales of Old Kentucky, and there repose the ashes of the sons of sordid and short-lived statesmen who could not be elected to the Senate. Had he then said it is comparatively unimportant who the Senator is; it is all important what he is and what he stands for; my party's success is more precious to me than any personal ambition"—then, indeed, could he have claimed that a party and a country owned him a debt; but having secured that nomination by the most devious of methods, holding it by the most questionable of titles, he stood like the chief of the party of Democratic representatives and the selfishness of a Democratic nominee, a Republican was invested with the toga of a Democratic Senator.

"He has exhausted every right, expressed or implied, legal or moral, he ever had to that nomination, and now shrink and dodge and squirm as he may behind the specious fallacies of Richard W. Knott, he is forced to fight:—he must win or lose on his merits; he must show the people of Kentucky that he deserves the distinction he seeks.

Beckham and Platform.

"At the death of William Goebel Mr. Beckham became Governor. He accepted without condition the platform of his party. He earnestly professed his intent to carry out to the letter the policies of his great predecessor. Democrats all over the State accepted that profession without question. Mr. Richard W. Knott accepted his nomination and for a time believed them.

"How did this same Richard W. Knott regard Mr. Beckham then? Free from questionable corporate alliances, unhampered and uncontrolled by lobbyists, tricksters and political apes.

As long as Beckham looked to Knott like Goebel or Bryan, Marshall or Carmack, Kern or Sherley, he received the same treatment and was honored by the same wanton and scurrilous abuse. Then he was neither wise nor capable or strong. Then he was not followed by cheering throngs because he was not underwritten by Sam Shackelford. Then he was no part of a statesman because he found no favor with the interests. Then in the eyes of Knott he was weak, green and plump.

On March 14, 1900, Knott declared:

"The rumor that Gov. Taylor intends to run for Governor next year is probably started in order to keep the young thing from playing in the streets, and not even the most bigoted mind in the ranks of the revolutionists believe it. Gov. Taylor intends to become a child steer."

"He was only after Beckham because the old man liked him. Beckham, the railroads' favorite, Beckham, the recipient of the secret and silent benedictions of Ryan and Rockefellers, that suddenly showed up in the pages of age, the model for all the statesmen of his time.

"Mr. Beckham, the hope of a people under the shadow of a great tragedy, and stranger to the devous paths his feet now tread, shrinks in the perverted vision of the world, and the world sees him as the proportions of a Little Lord Fauntleroy."

"We are told that he is being allowed to stand like he is going to stand by his name. And on April 24, 1900, we are advised that "Little Lord Fauntleroy has appeared in a new character, dressed in a suit of clothes, for short time as Peck's Bad Boy." And again on March 14, "Young Beckham has been suppressed forever, and this will please the young fellow as he continues to play and tend like and is allowed to pose as a sure-enough Governor of Kentucky of his nurses."

Then "Mister" Beckham.

On March 24, 1900, as a necessary defense to the sanctity of the courts, to prevent the destruction of property to the security of human life, and to the maintenance of the dignity and honor of a great State, Mr. Beckham made use of his power as Governor to stamp out the lawless and blood-thirsty hordes who had filled the Capital with terror and stained it with blood. Mr. Knott says he was disarmed without difficulty and vented his impudent fury, not upon Governor, but upon Mister Beckham.

"Then "Mister" Beckham, in an address to the people of Louisville, told them that he controlled that Senate, controlled it, I am told, two to one, and yet that Senate put him in the chair.

"Was the defeat of State-wide prohibition made the price of the support of the liquor interests in the Commonwealth? Did you aid or oppose national prohibition? Did you aid or assist state-wide prohibition?"

"He has constituted the Louisville Post and Courier, the rum king, for short time as Peck's Bad Boy." And again on March 14, "Young Beckham has been suppressed forever, and this will please the young fellow as he continues to play and tend like and is allowed to pose as a sure-enough Governor of Kentucky of his nurses."

In this same Louisville Evening Post of July 24, 1900, the following statement from Dick Knott and shrinking statesman: "Mr. Beckham stated that he would never cease to appreciate the Louisville people for their support of his campaign, and that he believes the conduct of this campaign will mark a new era in the politics of Kentucky, and the establishment of the best feeling between Louisville and the rest of Kentucky, that has been known in many years."

VALUE OF CORN SILAGE.

Economical and Palatable Feed For Winter Milk Production.
(Prepared by United States Department of Agriculture.)

Silage is the best and cheapest form in which succulent feed can be provided for winter use. An acre of corn can be placed in the silo at a cost not exceeding that of shocking, husking, grinding and shredding. Crops can be put in the silo during weather that could not be utilized in making hay or curing fodder. In some localities this is an important consideration. Given amount of corn in the form of silage will produce more milk than the same amount when shocked and dried.

There is less waste in feeding silage than in feeding fodder. Good silage properly fed is all consumed. Silage is very palatable and, like other succulent feeds, has a beneficial effect upon the digestive organs. More stock can be kept on a given area of land when silage is the basis of the ration.

Account of the smaller cost for labor silage can be used for supplementing pastures more economically than can silaging crops unless only a small amount of supplementary feed is required. Converting the corn crop into silage clears the land and leaves it ready for another crop sooner than if the corn is shocked and husked.

In all parts of the United States where the silo has come into general use the principal silage crop is corn. One reason for this is that ordinarily corn will produce more food material to the acre than any other crop which can be grown. Furthermore, corn makes an excellent quality of silage. The legumes, such as clover and alfalfa, are liable to rot unless special care is taken to pack the silage thoroughly and force the air out.

The only objection which has been raised concerning corn silage is the fact that it contains insufficient protein to meet requirements of animals to which it may be fed. Some persons have advised mixing clover, cowpeas or alfalfa with the corn when filling the silo in order to correct this deficiency of protein. Such a procedure is not to be advised, however, if it is possible to cure the clover or other crop into hay, which usually can be done if hay caps are used. Since some dry forage should always be fed with the silage it is better to use the leguminous hay in this way rather than to convert the crop into silage.

Corn should be harvested for silage at about the same time that it is harvested for fodder—that is, when the grain has become glazed and the lower leaves of the stalk have turned brown. The silage made from immature corn is not only less nutritious, but also more acidic than that made from more mature corn. The corn should not be allowed to become thoroughly ripe and dry, however, because the stalks and foliage are rendered more difficult to digest and, besides, the corn can not be packed into the silo tightly enough to prevent "fire fanning" without the addition of water. In case the corn is frozen before it is properly matured for cutting it should be harvested at once before it has lost time to dry out to any extent. Enough water should be added to replace that lost by evaporation through standing in the field after frost.

Farm Briefs.

The farmer who has planted tested seed is likely to be the man of whom his neighbors will say next fall: "He's always a lucky fellow. Look at the crop he's got."

One of the advantages of swine husbandry is that it gives quick and remunerative returns.

Raising live stock is one of the most far-reaching means of economy on the farm.

Intelligent specialization pays in farming as it pays in any other line of work.
